A Gift for Grandma

Lily wanted to make a gift for her grandma. She decided to paint a picture of their garden. She set up her paints by the window. First she painted the red roses. Then she added the yellow sunflowers and the green grass. A bluebird sat on the fence, so she painted it too. It took all afternoon. When the painting was dry, Lily put it in a wooden frame. On grandma's birthday, Lily gave her the gift. Grandma hugged her tight. This is the best gift ever, she said. Now the painting hangs in grandma's living room for everyone to see.
