The Lighthouse

On a rocky cliff stood a tall lighthouse. Its light swept across the dark sea every night. The keeper, Mr. Hale, polished the big lamp each evening. One stormy night, the wind howled and waves crashed on the rocks. Mr. Hale saw a small boat in trouble. He shone the light straight at the boat to guide it. The sailors saw the bright beam and steered away from the rocks. They reached the safe harbor just in time. The next morning, the sailors thanked Mr. Hale. Your light saved us, they said. Mr. Hale smiled. That is what the light is for, he answered.
